

Dr. Mark Jones

Research Team Leader for the Building Performance
Team at BRANZ

Dr Mark Jones is the Research Team Leader for the Building Performance Team at BRANZ, and has a background in materials science, durability and performance of building materials. Mark is also the Programme Leader for the Warmer, Drier, Healthier Homes research programme. to provide evidence-based information to help home and building occupants, building owners and the building industry produce and maintain warm, dry, healthy environments. Within the programme, the team are actively involved in research and knowledge transfer in the areas of indoor environments, thermal performance, and moisture-related issues. The team are also responsible for the National House Condition Surveys and National House Household Energy End-use Projects (HEEP2).