

Jennifer Taylor

Transformation Lead at Construction Sector Accord

Jennifer is Director of an award-winning, energy-efficient building company and was the first female Board Member of the Wellington Registered Master Builder Executive. She is often approached for comment on the New Zealand building sector.

Jennifer has held Sustainability and Executive-level Advisory and Marketing responsibilities at New Zealand Post and has contracted as a Sustainability Advisor.

As an advocate for all New Zealanders to have access to higher-performing buildings and homes with a reduced carbon footprint; Jennifer wants to ensure this starts from well-considered, united strategies and policies across the construction sector. She is passionate about using her commercial, scientific and strategic expertise to enable New Zealand buildings to be successful, sustainable and low-emission throughout all phases of the building life-cycle - construction, use and decommissioning.
