

Corporate Leadership & Development

Train the Trainer

GACC Midwest's Corporate Leadership & Development Training is designed to help leaders, managers and subject matter experts plan and conduct training more effectively, providing both theoretical and practical tools to anyone who supervises and regularly trains others.

This training will enhance your employee's overall ability to create a well defined training plan and lead others. They will utilize the skills learned in the class to be effective and efficient in their teaching creating a more positive, lasting experience at the workplace, which will result in financial improvements.

Training is an investment in the future of your company.

What will participants learn?

The focus of the seminar is on methods, tools, and theories in training and their application in the corporate world. In the class participants will learn about:

Leadership Development Mentoring as a skills set and adjusting for your team's preferred learning styles.

Training Strategies Improve team efficiency through multiple methods for teachings and their applications, while continuously checking progress.

Communication Techniques Identifying and addressing conflict while also being able to give and implement effective feedback.

Our Corporate Leadership & Development Training is available for your company, on your schedule, virtually or in-person, can include customized topics, as well as an exam and an opportunity for the attendees to earn an internationally recognized certificate in training.

“This training course helped me understand how to plan and execute instructions professionally. I feel much more confident now teaching our company’s next generation.”

Patrick Bolt, Trainer at Buhler Minneapolis, MN
